

Poultry club formed

A small group of poultry breeders and fanciers met recently to form the Lithgow and District Poultry Club.

They will be using the Lithgow Show office as their meeting venue and wish to invite all interested persons to attend.

Meetings have been set for the last Tuesday of the month, the next meeting being tonight at 7.30.

The club is a non-profit organisation which will be promoting and encouraging the breeding and exhibition of pure bred poultry.

It is planned to hold a show at the earliest possible date however the pens, currently in the show pavilion, are inadequate both in numbers and suitability.

To enable the club to obtain new pens they will be running various fund raisers and would like to appeal to the public to give them as much support as possible.

The keeping of poultry has many benefits for the young and the old alike and beginners to the fancy will be given sound encouragement and advice, with some members having had considerable experience with pure bred poultry.

Further information is available by contacting either the secretary Mr Dave Harrigan on 55 2694 or the president Mr Paul Evans on 53 1200.
